Starts in May Issue -

I N "The Wonder Woman," Mrs. Long achieved success; in "Whimsy of Whispering Hill" she sustains the high level that has characterized her many stories. There is the wizardy of the wild in Mrs. Long's work. Tucked off in Idaho, surrounded by streams and mountains, and vigorous characters, Whimsy strives in a land of subtle romance. Through the intuition of old

Professor Starr, she becomes mistress of Whispering Hill Ranch, and there, against obstacles, wins happiness. "Whimsy of Whispering Hill" is just the sort of serial story that grows interest with each succeeding installment. The first installment of this wonderful story appears in the May issue of Holland's Magazine.

Another big feature for May Holland's is "An Iron Buck," by Opie Read. No other writer can hope to have so strong a hold on people, especially Southwestern folks, as Opie Read. This is one of the best stories he has ever written.

"Silver From Spain" is another exceptional story in the May issue of Holland's. Written by Kay Cleaver Strahan, who is a well known writer.

Fiction is after all just a small part of the contents of this issue. There will be many special articles of unusual interest, including Women of the Southwest," biographies of Southwestern women who have been factors in the progress of this country. "Canning and Preserving," by Lillian Peek, B. A., B. S., lecturer and demonstrator for the College of In-dustrial Arts, Denton. "Interior Decoration," by Blanche A. Sloat, of the Department of Fine and Applied Arts, Denton, Texas.

And as if that were not enough there will be the regular departments, "Polly Pokenhorn," "House Plans," "Fashions," "Recipes," "Sto-ries for Children," "Puzzles."

Consider the contents of this May issue, then think what it means to you to be able to read Holland's Magazine every month, and you'll send your subscription in promptly.
